RN THAT COFFEE

Who can compute their value? TITIZENS of New York need not fear that their best interests will not be safeguarded in the matter of the coffee on board the plague ship, J. W. Taylor. President Murphy, of the Health Board, said to a Journal Reporter last FIDELITY LOAN ASS'N night: I have not receded from the position taken by me in the Journal this morning. When the coffee passes Quarantine on Saturday, and the question of its landing here comes to a vote, I assure you absolutely that I will be sustined by a majority of the Harlis Board. nights "I have not receded from the position taken by me in the Journal this tained by a majority of the Health Board." By no possibility can that coffee get to this city unless I should $ die. I am here to protect the people from the slightest danger in this matter, and I propose to do so no matter to what criticism I may be subjected. If I am quoted as saying anything different I shall be misrepresented or misunderstood." Dr. Jenkins said: "I believe the coffee to be worth about $400,000. In minor cases of contagion where property is destroyed by order of the Board, the ownrs are reimbursed for their loss. I do not believe, if refused an entry SALARY LOAN ASS'N here, the coffee can be entered at any other port in this country."

Admiral Endicott Asks for Intimates Mazet's Defeat No security, TOLMAN, room 1477-18, 320 Bronds Way, Also room 90, Arbuckle Building, Brooklyn, More Extensive Dock Facilities.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The annual report of Rear Admiral Endicott, chief of yards ings of the District Attorney's office, and docks, carries estimates of $2,157,000 Frank Moss created a sensation yesterday shed in 1853. When this shall have been SUES HUSBAND'S AUNT FOR done, plers should be crected extending from the present quay wall line on the cob dock front. These plers would provide all the space requisite for a coaling depot of the largest magnitude in a most gard, seems to the bureau the best solu-tion of the matter in the present situation of of affairs.

GIANT GLOVE TRUST SPLIT UP THE BACK.

Small Concerns That Gave Options on Their Plants at Gloversville Said to Have Been Pooled.

The glove trust bubble, which had grown to an imposing size during the past six months, was pricked yesterday by the anouncement that the large firm of Jacob Adder & Co., which had been regarded as the backbone of the combination, was really not interested in it in any way.

Last June, Ovington Ross, of the Hall & Ross Hushins Glove Company, of Chicago, and Charles E. Pain, of the law firm of Parker & Pain, of the same city, visited the owners of small plants in Gloversville. N. Y., and told them that a number of Western capitalists were going to buy up all the glove manufactories and form a frust. The statement influenced many to give options on their plants.

A representative of the Adler firm paid a visit to Gloversville a few days ago and told those who had given such options that if they had done so simply because strangers had told them that the firm of Jacob Adler & Co. were in it they had been goined. Adler & Co., which had been regarded as

Other recommendations are for the completion of the railway system in the yard, continuation of work on the quay wall of Whitney Basin, reconstruction of building No. 21, paving and grading the yard, extension of sewers and of electric plant, a new pay office, a building for ordnance material, a bascule bridge, and a ship for ordnance.

Admiral Endicott has this to say about the dry dock:

"It is highly desirable that the New York Navy Yard, which is the most important one, should have one good substantial and safe dry dock, which could be relied upon at all times, and which would be of ample size for the largest battle ships.

"A revision is advised," he adds, "of the jurisdiction line in the river in front of the yard and cob dock from that established in 1853.
